THE CITY WAITED 50 YEARS FOR THIS ONE!

Inspection Bureau Advises Changes

Letter To City Recommends Revisions In Fire Department

Circleville's fire insurance rates will be boosted unless council moves to increase the personnel of the fire department, the Ohio Inspection Bureau has notified the city.

At least ten men must constitute the fire department staff and a call force be established to provide at least 10 men at all fires, other than grass or automobile, within the city limits. Special training must be provided for the call force and the regular force of fire fighters also must participate in regular training periods.

Due to present "deficiencies" in the fire department the overall protection provided does not warrant the present insurance rate, the bureau said.

The letter from the state bureau to the city was read at council meeting Tuesday night. There was no discussion and council voted to "accept and file" the communication.

Stray Sauce From The Pumpkin

Note to the Army bandmen: Make it worth while and we'll point out the redhead and brunette who were seen studying the band's group picture — with a magnifying glass, egad! We'll squeal on both if you promise to play "Colonel Bogey."

One of the district's most dazzling pumpkin vines can be found growing around the front lawn of the Ray McClelland home in Amanda. It's about 60 feet in length and has about eight pumpkins, one about two feet in diameter. It's a "volunteer" — just sprouted and made itself at home.

A treasured keepsake owned by Mrs. Paul Radcliff, the first of all the Pumpkin Show queens, is a "wooden nickel" souvenir in the form of a wooden certificate. It apparently was issued here at the time of the Northwest Territory Sesquicentennial. On one side is a picture of Logan Elm, a historical landmark, and the names of Meeker Terwilliger and Mack Parrett Jr., chairman and secretary respectively of the celebration committee in Pickaway County.

Stand by for that familiar loud-speaker plea of all Pumpkin Shows: "Will the electrician please report to the information booth."

Early pre-show vision: Harold Clifton chug-chugging on the company's cycle up Court St. between the booth and tent fixers — while Traffic Officer Bob Temple rides alongside on his regular cycle. Anna race?

Robert Swift of the State Highway Department and Gene Wells, Columbus newspaperman, will judge the show's amateur photography contest tonight. The event is being held in the armory.

The Pickaway County district library will close at 5 p. m. each day of the Pumpkin Show.

2 Small Boys Slain

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Mrs. Mary Ann Gamache, 34, was held in jail today and Sedgewick County Atty. Warner Moore said she acknowledged stabbing two of her three little boys to death. She had a nervous breakdown recently.

last July it was widely reported locally that the findings were "just the same thing we've been hearing all along", and that no increase in the fire insurance rates was in prospect.

Instead, several persons close to the matter explained, the bureau was going to tell the city only that "if you want a better rate than you now have, you'll have to make several changes."

And these changes, it was said, could be made over a long period.

However, it seemed generally agreed last night that the letter gave a far different picture. The communication from the bureau follows:

"You will recall that on October 4, we sent you a copy of our latest complete report on fire protection facilities in your city. The report was the result of an inspection made by our classification department in July of this year.

"At the present time your city is considered as having Class 7 fire protection for fire insurance rating purposes. However, the recent inspection disclosed rather serious deficiencies in your fire department, and the over-all protection does not warrant the present insurance rate level.

"WE FEEL that your administration will want to correct the unsatisfactory conditions so that it will not be necessary for us to increase insurance rates. It is for this reason that we would like to submit to you the following recommendations:

"1. Inasmuch as your full-paid fire department manpower is insufficient for properly operating the apparatus which has been provided, it is our recommendation that an active and well trained call force be established. The call force should have sufficient membership that at least 10 members will be on available for fire duty at all times of day, and these men should respond on first alarm to other than grass or automobile fires.

"2. When the call force is established, the entire department, including paid members, should be given the basic course in firemanship as offered through the Trade and Industrial Education Service of the State Department of Education. Following completion of this course, regular drill sessions should be held about twice monthly.

"3. Two pumpers should respond to all building fires within the corporation limits. With the present limited manpower of your department, this is probably not feasible, but it can readily be done after the suggested call members are organized.

"In the above recommendations, we have suggested the utilization of other than full-paid men in your fire department, for we know that the medium-sized cities usually have a financial problem and cannot economically support the required number of full-paid firemen.

"We do believe that it would be advantageous, however, to hire one more full-paid man, so that the fire chief can be relieved of shift work, enabling him to devote full time to administrative duties, fire prevention work, and an organized training program.

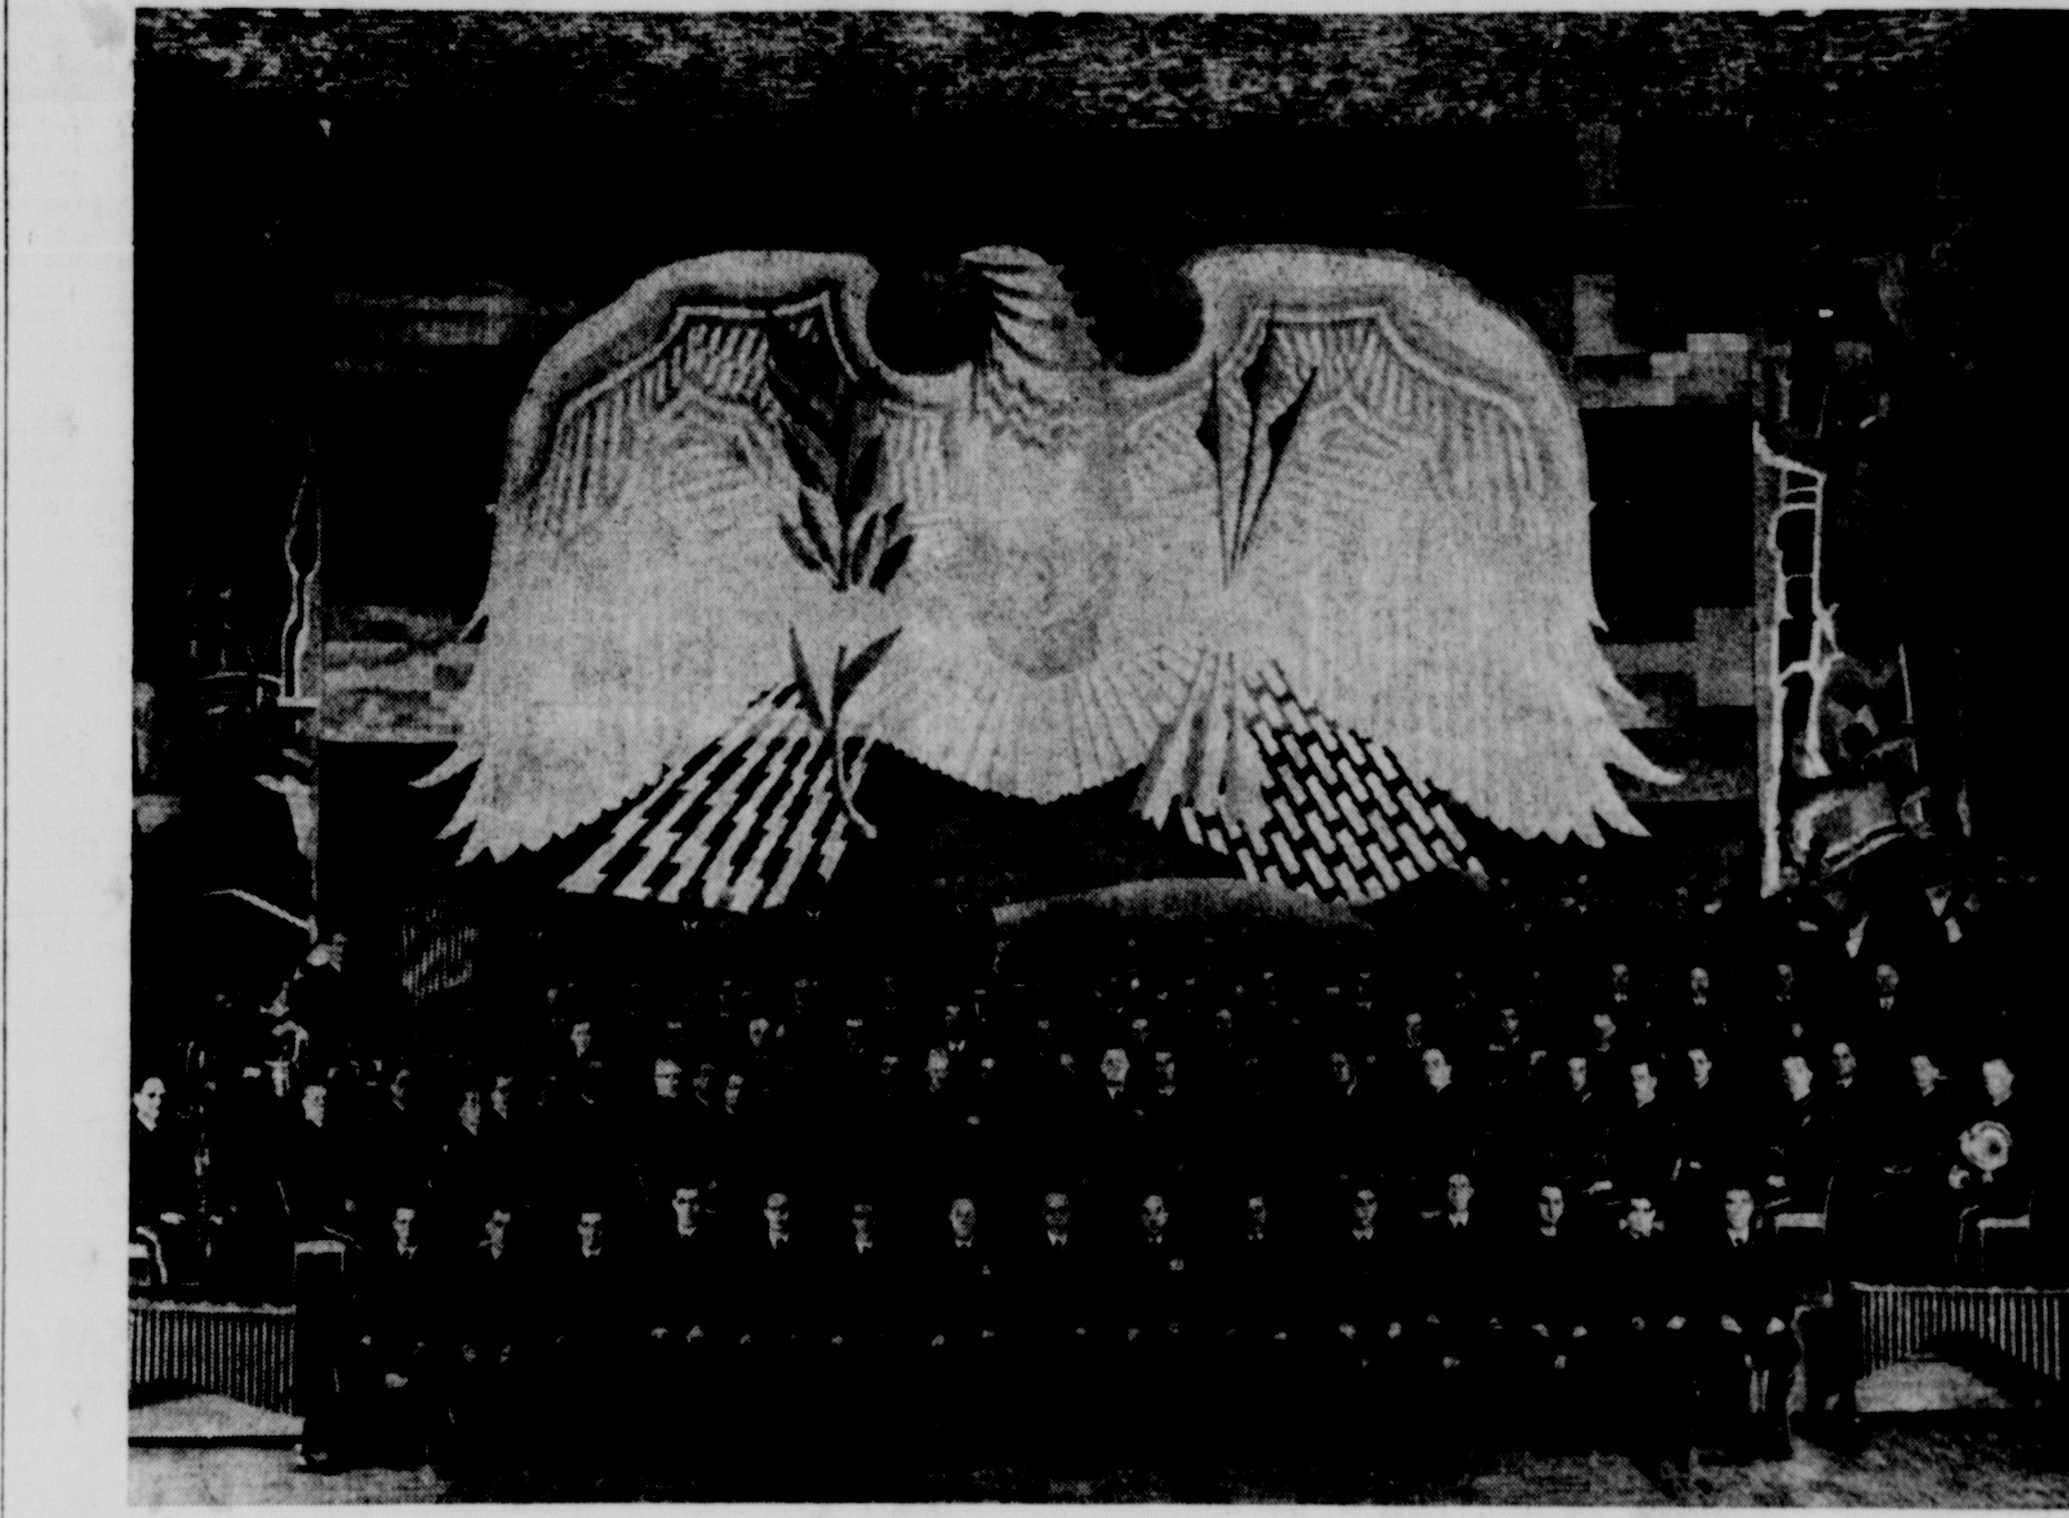

"IF YOU so desire, we will be pleased to have a representative of our classification department present the above recommendations to your city council or to any other group which you might designate. It should be noted that the recommendations made above are the same as recommendations 12, 13 and 17 as found on page 11 of our complete report. We feel that some action will have to be taken by December 1 to implement the above recommendations of Circleville is not to be re-rated in a poorer class."

Restaurant Prices Expected To Go Up

COLUMBUS (AP)—Restaurant prices are going up, according to a speaker at the Ohio State Restaurant Assn. meeting here.

Travis Elliott, Texas management consultant, said Tuesday that higher wages and shorter hours for workers, food price increases and public demand for faster service have been nibbling at restaurant profits since World War II.

"The public," he said, "wants to grab, gobble, gulp and run."

A WOMAN SHOPPING in a store near Court and Main yesterday said: "I'm coming down to the show earlier this year, because I'm sure anxious to hear that Army band play." And all around her, a half-dozen others spoke or nodded agreement. The little scene reflected the enthusiastic way in which the community is greeting the U. S. Army Field Band, shown above, as the topmost single attraction of the 1956 Golden Jubilee Pumpkin Show. The famed band has toured the world, playing to sell-out crowds all over the United States and in foreign lands. The band will play two free concerts daily during the show, today's concerts being set for 3 p. m. and 6 p. m. Tomorrow, the hours will be 1 p. m. and 6 p. m. Get your spots around that W. Main St. concert platform!

GOP 'Hard Money' Policies Rapped

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for President, today blasted what he called the "hard money" policies of the Eisenhower administration.

He said high interest rates had stopped home building, made it more difficult to buy automobiles and television sets, was "hard on the ordinary citizen and easy on the large financial institutions."

Contending that the GOP had not stopped inflation, he said: "This is an old Republican habit. Hard money in the towns and hard times on the farm brought on hard times everywhere the last time the Republicans were in office—and it can happen again."

Stevenson said that in the fiscal year 1956, ending last June 30, corporations paid $170 million less taxes than in 1952 despite record profits. In the same period, he said individuals paid $5½ billion more in taxes.

Stevenson told an early morning crowd in Niles that Vice President Nixon took back in four days his proposal for a four-day work week for the nation.

THE DEMOCRATIC presidential nominee said Nixon had proposed on a recent Saturday that the nation make a four-day work week one of its economic goals.

"But by next Tuesday he took it all back," Stevenson said. "So I will have to say the Republican advocacy of a four-day work week lasted only four days."

Despite a furious broadside of Republican criticism, Stevenson stood firm on his proposal for an end to hydrogen bomb tests.

Without answering Republican attacks directly, Stevenson said he was "highly encouraged and not surprised" that some leading physicists are supporting his proposals.

Youths Questioned In School Blast

GREENUP, Ky. (AP)—Sheriff Delbert McKenzie believes an explosion, which left the interior of a one-room rural school a smoking shambles just minutes after 42 children had been sent home was the work of youths.

The children had been dismissed Tuesday morning after their 24-year-old teacher found the lock on the school door jammed.

Miss Juanita Gullett was en route to report the incident to Greenup County School Supt. Roscoe Stevens when the blast tore a large hole in the 40-year-old school. The sheriff reported three boys, 12 to 14 years old, were being questioned.

State Fair Chief Files Resignation

COLUMBUS (AP)—State Agriculture Director A. L. Sorensen Tuesday accepted "with great reluctance" the resignation, effective Nov. 1, of Sam Cashman, state fair manager and assistant director of agriculture.

Cashman will become director of marketing development for the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

Ike Campaigning In Far Northwest

SEATTLE (AP)—President Eisenhower turned his campaign today to the battle for Washington state's nine electoral votes.

The President's big pitch for the Washington vote comes tonight in an address at a rally at Civic Auditorium. He will be plugging too for election of Republican Gov. Arthur B. Langlie to the U. S. Senate, who is running against Sen. Warren Magnuson.

Eisenhower arrived in Seattle late Tuesday after being greeted by huge, enthusiastic crowds in Minnesota, where he spoke in downtown Minneapolis and St. Paul. Newsmen who have traveled with the President throughout

Kefauver Says Ike Fails To Keep Pledges

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver, moving into the Midwest for two days of campaigning across Missouri and Kansas, renewed today his charge the Eisenhower administration failed to live up to its promises.

The Democratic vice-presidential candidate arrived by chartered plane from New York City, where he belabored the Eisenhower administration in a nationwide broadcast Tuesday night.

"Under the Eisenhower - Nixon administration," he said, "more heads of government agencies have been involved in corruption than under any administration since the Republican administration of Gen. Grant."

Quoting from Eisenhower's speeches of the 1952 presidential campaign, he charged the administration with failure to live up to its pledges on farm prices, taxes, cost of living, labor and atomic energy.

Britain Rejects Red China Gripe

LONDON (AP)—Britain has rejected Red China's charges that Hong Kong authorities were negligent in protecting Chinese Communists during rioting in the British crown colony last week.

Fifty - six persons were killed and several hundred injured during disorders growing out of Chinese refugee protests at the tearing down of Nationalist Chinese flags by a minor official.

his campaign figured the turnout as the largest so far.

In Seattle, the crowds along the route from the airport were thinner than in the Twin Cities, but jam-packed around the Hotel Olympic, where the President and Mrs. Eisenhower are staying.

Word that Eisenhower is optimistic about his chances for winning Minnesota's 11 electoral votes came from White House press secretary James C. Hagerty.

"The reports we got in Minnesota indicate the President again will carry the state," Hagerty said.

EISENHOWER campaigned hard Tuesday and went to bed early Tuesday night, "tired but happy," as Hagerty put it. On this second day of a five-day tour into five states, the President's staff kept his schedule clear of engagements to give him time to work on tonight's speech and those he will make the rest of the week in Oregon, California and Colorado.

In Minnesota, Eisenhower dealt with two main themes — world peace and the farm situation.

As for enduring peace, he said, "We have advanced a long way toward that goal." And he scoffed at what he called "the anguished cry of some politicians that we have made no gains whatsoever toward the peace we seek."

Miss Pumpkin Show Parade Starts At 8 This Evening

Bringing a host of memories on their echoes, the Foreman Chimes at 2 p. m. today announced the opening of the 1956 Golden Jubilee Pumpkin Show.

The chimes, played in the courthouse tower by Miss Barbara Sieverts, introduced the few solemn minutes that emphasize each year the finer meaning and worthy purpose of the far-famed celebration.

Invocation for this year's big anniversary fiesta was delivered by the Rev. Charles Reed. Mrs. Gerald Doering sang the "Star Spangled Banner", accompanied by the Amanda High School Band.

Today's pumpkin pie-baking winners were announced as follows: (Commercial Class) Mrs. John Wright of E. Mound St., last year's grand prize winner; (Own Recipe Class) Mrs. Frank Woodward Jr. of Town St.

And Mayor Bob Hedges voiced the official welcome to one and all.

The mayor's talk traditionally serves to link the show's solemn prelude with the gaiety and jittery excitement of the fiesta itself.

HE URGED everybody to have a good time of it. And everybody began immediately to take him at his word.

One of the topmost attractions of this year's "small-down mardi gras", the U. S. Army Field Band was to give its first concert of the show at 3 p. m. on W. Main St. And the band will play again today at 6 p. m.

The famous organization will present two free concerts each day of the show.

At 4 p. m. today, the Little Miss Pumpkin Show parade was scheduled to start. Judging of the entries is set to begin about one-half hour later.

Nearly 50 musical units will participate in this year's program, and band concerts, for hours at a time, will follow one-after-another. One of the earliest events this evening will be in the Pickaway County 4-H Style Review, to be held on the W. Main St. platform.

French Premier Faces Vote Test

PARIS (AP)—Premier Guy Mollet was authorized to stake the life of his Socialist-led Cabinet in a National Assembly debate on his Suez Canal policy.

The decision to demand a vote of confidence was taken at a Cabinet meeting presided over by President Rene Coty. Defeat would mean resignation of Mollet and his ministers.

Gerard Jaquet, secretary of state for information, said Mollet probably will ask for the vote of confidence Friday and that the vote would then be held on Tuesday.

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE

"OUTSIDE WORLD AS SEEN BY CLAM"

This Doodle was drawn from a photograph that was taken by my pet Clam, Rover, with one of those tiny Japanese Cameras which I shoved inside his shell when he opened up for lunch. At first he didn't get the idea but after a few good cracks with my ruler he caught on and took over twenty snapshots by clicking the shutter with his little valve. Unfortunately, Rover wouldn't open up to give me back the Camera and I had to send him along to the Drug Store to get the film developed. So let me know if you hear of anyone who's in the market for an 8 x 10 Clam. (Glossy Finish).

Phone Crisis Brings Call For Council Session

City Police Accused Of 'Just Watching' As Mob Stones Office

PORTSMOUTH (P)—What promises to be one of the most fire-works-laden Portsmouth City Council meetings in years was shaping up today.

A group of aroused citizens has protested at what they called lack of law enforcement during the strike against Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. They demanded a special City Council meeting for Thursday night.

The group, the Voluntary Citizens Committee for Law Enforcement, heard heavy criticism of city police and an explanation from the superintendent of the state highway patrol, Col. George Mingle, that his men had only limited powers.

About 80 state highway patrolmen are in the area. They came in Monday when the telephone company opened up two exchanges it had closed earlier.

About 12 hours later, the patrolmen, who had been jeered since their arrival, watched with city police as crowds hurled rocks and bottles at exchanges.

THE COMPANY then shut down its Portsmouth, New Boston and Sciotoville exchanges and moved supervisory personnel to Columbus.

The citizens group wondered why local police together with highway patrolmen could not keep the exchanges open and stop the crowd's violence.

In opening the meeting Tuesday night, Paul E. Flohr, a businessman, said that "we felt we were entitled to law enforcement which we did not have."

Dr. Richard L. Wagner said, "If law enforcement has failed, then those in charge are on the spot." He proposed that the citizens group take steps to remove from office those law enforcement chiefs who did not maintain order.

Robert L. Moulton, chairman of the state utilities commission, and Mingle were at the meeting. Moulton said Gov. Frank J. Lausche had asked them to "sit in."

Moulton was asked what the next step in law enforcement would be. He replied: "One step that can be taken, the governor can call in the National Guard. I'm merely stating the governor has that power and do not mean to imply that step will be taken."

A motion by a Portsmouth resident, Michael Segal, to ask the governor to send in the National Guard, died for lack of a second. The group appeared to feel it should first exhaust all possibilities of improving local law enforcement.

THE CITIZENS GROUP wants Portsmouth Police Chief Hugh Rudity and Scioto County Sheriff Burl Justice to be at the council meeting to answer questions.

The group named a steering committee to prepare questions for councilmen and decide on the group's policies and future actions. Dr. Chester Allen, former Portsmouth mayor, said the group must be prepared to oppose those who might think law enforcement has been adequate.

Later, the Rev. Bernard T. Lomas of Trinity Methodist Church where the meeting was held, said the group represented all faiths in the Portsmouth area.

"It's up to every one of you to see that we get the law enforcement we deserve," said Flohr, assistant chairman of the meeting. Co-chairman was the Rev. E. T. Wikle, who said "men with troubled hearts" were praying that the trouble would vanish.

"We are vitally concerned about your problem," Moulton said. "I want to definitely assure you we are keeping a close watch with deep interest and vital concern. We came down only for the purpose of offering our services, not to tell you what to do."

He added he could not say what the state government might do in the next few days. But shortly before the meeting began, Gov. Lausche announced in Columbus that two Ohio National Guardsmen, Col. Herbert Fagon of Delaware and Lt. Col. Robert Folk of Chillicothe, had been sent to Portsmouth to investigate the situation.

LAUSCHE SAID he had received no request to call out the National Guard. The governor conferred Tuesday with Mingle, Moulton, Adjutant Gen. Leo M. Kreber, who is Ohio National Guard commander, and Ray M. White, Lausche's secretary.

The governor said Moulton and Mingle would urge strikers to return to their jobs for 30 days to permit negotiations and tempers to cool.

An earlier effort by Lausche to end the strike collapsed Monday night when a crowd of about 500 persons showered the New Boston exchange with beer bottles, bricks, rocks and other missiles.

About 200 persons engaged in the same type of activity at the Portsmouth exchange and the company halted service for the third time, only 10 hours after it had been restored.

Federal narcotics agents made a prescription check of Lancaster drug stores at the request of County Prosecutor E. Raymond Morehart. The grand jury indictment was based on their findings.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The longer this campaign lasts the more President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson sound like phonograph records of themselves.

They've been repeating themselves—not only in their attacks, promises, claims and counter-claims—but particularly in some of the words they use.

This might be expected in a campaign and must be due to one of three reasons:

(1) They can't think of new words, or (2) they like the old ones so much they can't bear to part with them, or (3) they think using them over and over is good politics.

If this campaign sounds dull—as it does to a lot of people—it may be because the candidates are beginning to make one speech sound pretty much like another.

One of Eisenhower's favorite words is "peace." He works that one overtime, using it in practically every speech. Although he says "peace" isn't an issue in this campaign, he's made it sound like a big one.

It's not hard to guess why:

The President and his advisers probably decided that—since there's no big-scale shooting in the world and the Korean War ended during his administration—it's one of his best selling points. He manages to bring Korea into most of his speeches some way.

Stevenson has practically taken out a copyright on a few words and phrases which he bounces off the Republicans every chance he gets.

With these words, sometimes rearranged in new combinations, he accused the Republicans of "complacency" and "political cynicism" and of being "stalled on dead center." He says they are "smug" and put up "stubborn opposition to new ideas."

While he says the Republicans haven't kept their 1952 campaign promises—in those words—he sometimes gives them a rest by jazzing up the same idea with a little color, such as saying the Republican promises are "checks that bounce."

Eisenhower is a great man for "facts" and "honesty" and telling the truth. Those words prowl through his speeches as regularly as a night watchman making his rounds and punching a time clock.

Stevenson alternately accuses the Republicans of "indifference" and of an "unfeeling attitude."

The phrase which has brought him perhaps the most lively response—at least from Eisenhower under whose skin it seems to get—is the repeated complaint that the present White House occupant is a "part-time president."

Statue Planned To Honor Famous Hound 'Old Drum'

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP)—This town plans a statue to "Old Drum," the hound who inspired a famous speech in 1870 by Sen. George Graham Vest of Missouri. The Chamber of Commerce has started a campaign to raise $2,500 for it.

Vest's famous tribute to dogs was delivered in a damage suit in which he represented a man whose dog had been shot by a neighbor in Warrensburg. The jury deliberated two minutes and awarded Vest's client $500.

A bronze plaque will carry Vest's declaration that:

"A dog is the one absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him and the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous."

Village Ringing Old Curfew Bell

LORAIN (AP)—The bell in the town hall tower tolled out a curfew for youth in nearby South Amherst Tuesday night for the first time since the village passed a curfew ordinance in 1918.

A rash of vandalism, getting worse as Halloween approaches was responsible.

The bell tolls at 8 p. m., and youths under 18 are supposed to get off the streets within the next half hour.

Thomas Snizek, the village police chief, said those who don't will be taken to the town hall and "dealt with accordingly."

Cleveland Youth Shot By Officer

CLEVELAND (AP)—Patrolman Ernest Holbert Tuesday night fired a shot into a leg of a 17-year-old youth who he said jumped him as he was making a routine check.

The boy, Raymond Wild, is reported in satisfactory condition.

Holbert said he stopped to question Wild, another youth and two girls. He said the boy attacked him and ran. Holbert fired five times, one bullet hitting Wild.

The two girls disputed Holbert's version. They said Holbert started an argument with Wild and shoved him against an automobile.

Political Advice Given By Nixon

YOUNGSTOWN (AP)—Vice President Nixon gave this advice today to college students interested in politics: Study the classics; go to work in the precincts.

Nixon said at Youngstown University, courses in political science and public speaking are fine if you have time for them. But, classical literature, history and economics give background that will stand a public official in good stead long after the particular subjects are forgotten.

Convicted Slayer Confident He Will Escape Execution

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Samuel W. Tannhill, 27, awaiting execution in Ohio Penitentiary for the slaying of a Fremont waitress, says he has not given up hope that his life will be spared.

Tannhill is scheduled to become the 300th person to die in the penitentiary's electric chair Oct. 25.

He told newsmen who interviewed him today:

"Since the first day I came here I've never had any hope from the courts. But I do have hope and it grows as the (execution) day gets closer."

He said he does not know where help will come from, but he believes that God will help him somehow.

Tannhill, admittedly just a "drifter" until he took up residence in death row a year ago, was convicted of slaying Shirley Bradford, 29, May 2, 1955.

He told newsmen he never was in a church before that fateful day in May when he robbed the Hut Restaurant in Fremont and then kidnapped and killed the waitress. But since coming to Ohio Penitentiary, he has spent more than 1800 hours studying the Bible.

He declined to discuss details of the slaying. He said he told his story in court and it wasn't believed and telling it now would be "like trying to stop the water after it went over the dam."

Since his stay in death row, Tannhill has been visited by his mother and step-father, by two of his three sisters and by a number of ministers. He expects to see his mother and his two sisters again before he walks the last mile if he is not saved from the death penalty.

He said he has received more than 1,000 letters since he was sentenced to die, some from as far away as Japan.

Kennel Manager Held For Slaying

CLEVELAND (AP)—Police today were preparing charges against Andrew Petroff, 29, in the Oct. 8 slaying of Frank Lewis, 39, a Mayfield kennel manager.

Cuyahoga County Sheriff Joseph M. Sweeney said Petroff admitted beating Lewis to death in the home of Miss Florence Keller, 59, where both men resided.

Sweeney quoted Petroff as saying he had argued with Lewis after a night of drinking, and that he pounded Lewis in the stomach.

THE DOW THEORY

MUCH IS BEING heard of the Dow Theory, now that the stock market is again very much in the news.

The Theory has a great many disciples among both speculators and investors — perhaps more unavowed than avowed disciples. Brokerage offices report a substantial number of clients who constantly say: "I don't quite subscribe to this Dow Theory, but—"

Whether or not the Theory would prove sound in the absence of many followers, the very fact of its wide following helps to make it seem valid.

The Theory is named after Charles H. Dow, a founder of Dow, Jones and Company, and first editor of the Wall Street Journal. The Theory was really formulated by Dow's close friend, W. P. Hamilton, who succeeded him as editor of the Journal. Hamilton tied together the analyses of stock market behavior made by Dow in many editorials.

Hamilton warned that the Theory was not infallible, and that it could be vitiated by manipulation. Today its disciples argue about some of its features much as theologians differ on texts in the Scriptures.

The Theory concerns itself only with long-term trends lasting for many months. Day-by-day fluctuations are meaningless. Even the secondary reactions analyzed are those lasting for several weeks or months. These price movements are made clear only by lines on charts. That is why Dow Theory disciples are called "chart followers."

In addition to the break-throughs of previous significant lows or highs in the averages, essential parts of the Dow Theory are: In a long-term bear market, secondary lows will be constantly penetrated by ensuing secondary movements; secondary highs will not be broken through. If the market has stayed within a 5 per cent range for some time, the ensuing movement up or down will be a major movement.

Inasmuch as the highs or lows initiating a previous major trend must be penetrated by both the industrial and the rail averages before the Dow Theory signal comes for a new major movement, the disciples do not get into a market until its trend, up or down, has been in operation for some time.

THIS MAY HELP

SOME OF THE 1937 model automobiles, according to a Detroit dispatch, will be equipped with a gadget that gives a warning buzz to the driver whenever he exceeds what he believes to be a safe speed limit, whether it be 30, 40, 50 or 60 miles an hour. He is at liberty to set his own limit, presumably based on his own performance and physical limitations.

Because many slick new cars are so free from noise and jolting that the driver sometimes finds it difficult to realize the velocity of his machine, this device may be helpful in the general campaign for safe driving. But the use of this device necessitates a good conscience and abundant self-analysis. The new gadget can help those who are conscientiously trying to drive safely, but they will not be a guarantee.

These Days

What makes a "dirty word" in politics, national and international? Let us take, for example, the word, imperialism. It was a "good word" for many centuries because Europe thrived on imperialism. The Spanish, the Dutch, the French, the British, the Austro-Hungarian and other empires brought into Europe enormous wealth upon which, at any rate, Britain, France and the Netherlands are still living.

"Imperialism" became bad during World War I when Woodrow Wilson and Jan Smuts accepted the defeat of the newer German imperialism as a rebuke to this method of maintaining order among the weak and backward peoples. Wilson's 14 Points included self-determination which was a system for fragmenting the human race. The destruction of the Austro-Hungarian Empire disturbed order in the Danubian world and paved the way for the appearance in Europe of the Soviet Empire, united all the Slavic peoples within the hegemony of the Kremlin—a union often attempted but never before succeeding.

"Imperialism" became a bad word because of the emotional reaction in this country to the partition of China by European countries, the Gandhi movement in India and the emergence of Japan as a Great Power which started in 1868 and ended in 1945.

But the "imperialism" of Soviet Russia and of Red China—the largest empire the human race has ever known which not only holds peoples in subjection but which actively and currently practises Genocide—this is not included among the bad words because the Russians have, with a brilliant sense of semantics, called their effort "liberation." It is the same old imperialistic process under a new label and the label succeeds in fooling those who will not look beyond it to the contents.

The Russians, in fact, have dropped the word, imperialism, altogether because it comes too close to home. Instead, they have latched on to the word "colonialism" which now becomes a very bad word, as bad as those the little boys used to write on walls with chalk before the days of the high standard of living when the little boys write dirty words on walls with lip-stick. When the word "colonialism" is said, those who belong to countries which have or have had colonies are supposed to hide their heads in shame.

But the fact stands out that when the British had 80,000 troops in Egypt, the world was not on the verge of war because of the Hitleresque Arab who seeks to establish an Arab Empire no better surely than the British Empire which he hopes, with Russian help and American sentimentality, to destroy.

This is but one example of the conversion of an ordinary word into a bad word by constant propaganda to that effect and by the so-called "educating" of the masses, developing disturbances which led to increased poverty, hunger, revolution and war.

Karl Marx, writing as a correspondent for the "New York Daily Tribune," from London, in 1837, said (in an article which may have actually been penned by his associate Frederick Engels):

"There is evidently a different spirit among the Chinese now to what they showed in the war of 1840 to '42. Then, the people were quiet; they left the Emperor's soldiers to fight the invaders, and submitted after a defeat with Eastern fatalism to the power of the enemy."

THE BLONDE DIED DANCING

by KELLEY ROOS

SYNOPSIS
Connie Barton's husband of almost five happy years has made her suspicious lately by his Wednesday night absences. His alibi for going out these evenings have worn thin. So Connie concludes Steve must be having blonde trouble. She resolves to fight fire with fire. She begins by going to Paul's beauty parlor and having her hair dyed blonde. Then—

CHAPTER 2

I would have to hurry. Steve I would already be home, wanting his dinner, impatient to get all dolled up and be on his Wednesday night way. But I took time to stop at the corner of Lexington and Fifty-ninth and do a little testing. Perhaps I had been deceiving myself. Maybe Paul hadn't been so overcome by me; maybe it was just pride in his own work.

I leaned one shoulder up against the fruit juice stand window and loitered. Two young intellectuals, male, approached. They were arguing violently. They saw me. They stopped solving the world's problems, they slowed down. After they passed me and got faced front again I heard one of them ask, "What were we saying?" I was gratified. An elderly delivery boy came along on a bicycle. He was nearly maimed by a taxi. I was further gratified, but not yet satisfied. A little man, carrying his big wife's bundles, turned the corner. He almost stopped. She grasped his arm, marched him off. I heard what she said. She called me a husky.

I was deeply gratified, completely satisfied. I went home. It was only two rooms, bath and kitchenette over a Lexington Avenue delicatessen, but to me it was the home I was trying to save, and I went there as fast as I could.

I went into the kitchen. Steve had already got himself something to eat. I went into the bedroom. His clothes were all laid out, including the tie I had given him last Christmas. Steve was in the shower.

I got out the negligee he had given me last Christmas. I put it on, spent a few minutes at my dressing table. I draped myself on the chaise longue, practicing slow smiles and eyelid lowering in a hand mirror. I tried a throaty laugh or two.

Then the bathroom door opened and Steve was standing there, almost naked. He saw me. He jumped back into the bathroom and slammed the door. He did a double-take with the door. It opened slightly once, slammed shut again. It opened once more, stayed open. He was looking at me.

He ventured a step toward me. "Connie..." "Darling..." "Connie, what in God's name happened to you?" "I've been to the beauty parlor." "Did it explode with you in it?" "Darling..."

You're Telling Me!

"Connie, no! Oh, no!" He came closer and peered into my face. I slow smiled him. I slipped him the lowered lid business. I put a cigarette between my half-parted lips. It fell out.

"Connie, why?" His voice rose. "Why in hell did you do this to yourself?" I opened my mouth to speak, but I was trying for something too throaty, too husky. Nothing came out.

"No!" Steve shouted. "We won't discuss it now. I'm late for my appointment." I got up and went into the living room. I heard him scrambling into his clothes. I fixed the lights, low but not too low. When he came in, I was leaning provocatively against the fireplace, one foot extended a little, my knee bent in the Dietrich manner. He stopped and stared at me.

I said, "Must you go out... must you really?" He waved. I was making time. I threw back my shoulders, lazily though, and tilted back my head. I lowered my lids another notch. I could hardly see him.

He said, "Yes, I really do have to go. I... I promised Al Finch."

"Promised him what?" "His aunt's coming to town, his only aunt, and he's tied up. I have to meet her at Pennsylvania Station..."

"Darling," I swayed toward him. "Darling..." "Connie, for God's sake..." Then he was laughing so hard he couldn't speak. He choked, he doubled up. Then he staggered to the door and was gone.

I sat down...another Wednesday night and I was alone. I started for the phone to call Paul, demand my money back. But I by-passed the phone. There was still something I could do. I could follow Steve and learn the truth. I could find out what gorgeous, fascinating creature's eyes needed scratching out.

I gambled on the direction Steve might have taken, and I won. He was crossing Lexington at Bloomingdale's, headed for the downtown station of the IRT subway, when I caught sight of him. There were enough people on the platform to screen me from him until a train came in. I got in the car just behind him. I watched him sit down. He was smiling; occasionally his lips would quiver in a chuckle.

At Fifty-first Street an overdone, outlandish blonde of an uncertain age boarded the train and sat opposite Steve. He started laughing out loud, uncontrollably. Everybody in the car looked at him, then looked around to find the joke. Thwarted, they shook their heads and shrugged at one another. One man drew circles on his temple and pointed to Steve. His diagnosis received considerable approval.

Steve got off the train at Grand Central. I followed him up through the teeming depot, across Vanderbilt Avenue, west along Forty-fourth Street. It was quite a chore. Steve was in a hurry, anxious to get where he was going. Bitterly I thought of the times when he came hurrying home to me, even on Wednesday nights.

He turned north on Madison and he was practically galloping. I was about ready to cave in when he ducked into a large office building on a corner. I reached the lobby just in time to see him board an elevator. He was its only passenger. Its doors closed; it started up. I watched the indicator; it was at the fourteenth floor that Steve got out.

I took a step toward another elevator, then hesitated. I had a moment of shattering misgivings. Why was I here? Just what did I intend to do? Confront the homewrecker, plead with her to return what was lawfully mine? No, I could never bring myself to do that. Then I remembered a thing or two... like the first time I met Steve Barton.

After college there was enough of Uncle Willie's money left for me to study journalism for a year at Columbia. That spring, growing a little worried about my finances, I started looking for a job. I ventured down to one of New York's largest if not most literature newspapers. But I never did get to see anyone important there. Because this fellow named Steve Barton was trying to make some time with the switchboard girl when I got there. He thought I should let him tell me about this newspaper dodge over a drink, maybe two.

Two weeks later he was still telling me, nightly. He said it would take years for me to forget my education and become a passable reporter. It was different with him. He was only a high school man and the New York City high school had been so overcrowded that he hadn't learned anything really. He had a chance in this newspaper dodge. He was unsullied by any high ideals of journalism... I didn't really listen to him much. I sat there nightly in that smoky bar and looked at him. I found myself enjoying that.

In June I was graduated with honors from my school of journalism. Steve got a raise and a promotion from police reporting to the sports department. We got married.

The elevator operator was asking me impatiently, "Going up or not?"

I stepped into the car. I had something to fight for.

"What floor?" the operator asked.

"Fourteenth," I said emphatically.

"Boy, you really mean it, don't you, lady?"

Connie comes face to face with death tomorrow in Chapter 3 of "The Blonde Died Dancing."

Your Help Needed To Stamp Out TB

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

THE only thing that prevents loss, however, may be fatal. The us from eradicating tuberculosis is an uncooperative public. And you may be one of those who don't cooperate!

We know the cause of this once dreaded disease and we know the cure. But locating affected persons and placing them under medical care is quite another matter.

Cause of TB

TB is caused by a germ—the tubercle bacillus—which invades the system slowly and destroys the tissue. Once the germ is inside the body, it may remain quiet for a long time and cause little if any trouble.

If you are in good general health and not too many germs have invaded your body, your good condition will help prevent the bacilli from growing and spreading.

Usually, however, the disease attacks a person whose body resistance is low, a condition brought on by inadequate food, late hours and not enough rest.

Living Habits

If we can detect this TB germ early enough, the victim may have to alter his living habits only slightly. He'll just have to take things a bit easier, get more rest and do whatever his doctor prescribes.

A case of advanced tuberculosis, however, may be fatal. The least you can expect in such a situation is several months recuperation in a sanatorium.

TB is not confined solely to the lungs, despite popular belief that it is. The disease also may attack the glands, skin, eyes, bones and coverings of the brain.

Since there may not be any noticeable symptoms of TB at the outset, a person may have the disease for quite a while without even knowing it.

By the simple means of a chest X-ray and a tuberculin test you can find out whether you are free from TB.

Free X-Rays

In many of our cities, X-rays are offered free to anyone who will spend the minute or two it requires to take them. It seems like a small price to pay.

An annual physical check-up, including a chest X-ray, is the best way to make sure that you do not have TB.

Cooperate with your local health officials. After all, they're trying to keep you alive.

Girl In Unfeminine World

--By Hal Boyle

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — There is a young gal engineer here who holds down a top job in building America's guided missiles, but she can't fix her own motor car.

"I can change a tire," said Ruth Harlam, smiling. "But if anything goes wrong with the motor, I take it to the garage, just like everybody else."

The current national shortage of trained engineers has broken down much of the old antipathy against career women in this field. At 32 Miss Harlam, dark-haired and quietly attractive, is a rising slide rule princess of the atomic era.

She is a project supervisor in developing launching mechanisms for two key weapons in the Nation's defense arsenal — the "Talos" and "Bomarc" guided missiles. She directs a staff of 23 male draftsmen and engineers in the lab of the American Machine & Foundry Co.

It sounds like an unfeminine job, but Miss Harlam was advanced to it because of the outstanding work she did on such other unfeminine projects as a new howitzer, an anti-aircraft gun and a tank.

But the gal is thoroughly feminine. She wears dresses in the laboratory, donning slacks only when her job sometimes makes them more practical. She likes to knit and would rather cook than eat out, eventually hopes to marry and have a family.

"I got into this by accident," she recalled. "I started doing some tracing work for my brother who was studying drafting. But he wound up in sales work, and I ended up an engineer."

Miss Harlam blushed when asked if her knowledge of thermodynamics might operate as a barrier to romance by making her too critical of men, who are usually more thermal than dynamic.

"No, I don't think so," she said. "Men are human, after all, and not an engineering problem. There is no predictable scientific law on how two people fall in love."

She has found neither her sex nor her youth much of a handicap in supervising men engineers senior to her.

"They don't resent me," she said. "In engineering work, what determines how a thing gets done is whether it is right or wrong. Whether a girl says it or a man makes no difference."

"Girls with the right training and the right attitude toward their work can do as well as men. There is a certain amount of prejudice against them still, but most of it can be overcome by showing you can do the work."

It bothers her occasionally that so far most of her career has been spent in developing military weapons.

"But out of all these projects come peaceful uses," she said, "and I hope to see the day when it will be possible for nations to devote at least half the money and effort now going into defense weapons to more peaceful goals."

"My own dream is to find a way to make solar energy available cheaply for the home."

Miss Harlam is interested in teaching. She feels that today all engineering and science graduates are duty-bound to do at least some parttime teaching.

NEW SHEATH DRESS Can Be Worn By Most Women

It is a tribute to the American woman's slim figure that the sheath dress has caught on so quickly. The only trouble is, that it is usually shown in its very newest, most figure-hugging version on models who are incredibly slim, hungry-looking girls! Many women who actually could wear a sheath dress gracefully have been scared away by it just because they have figures and nice curves!

Some of the new cotton knits look quite pretty with narrow belts. They allow for softness about the waist that is remarkably easy to wear even if one is not a sylph. Wear them with one of the new girdles for a slim look.

Sleeveless cotton knit sheaths are so good-looking for suburban late day and informal evening wear. And the beige cotton knits could not be smarter.

But besides being smart, the new sheaths are easy to wash and never need ironing. Then, too, they pack so well without getting wrinkles.

Calvary WSWS Holds Meet In Carothers Home

The ladies of the Women's Society of World Service of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church met in the home of Mrs. Manley Carothers with Mrs. Willis Flowers, as co-hostess.

Fourteen members and two guests were present. The guests were Mrs. Russell Archer and Mrs. Marion DeLong, who were welcomed as new members.

Mrs. Talmer Wise opened the meeting with the theme, "For Christ and His Church." She read the scripture lesson followed by Mrs. Ida Warner leading the group in prayer.

During discussion the members agreed to prepare bandages for a Leper Mission and collect clothing to be sent to a mission field. They planned to spend a day packing the items and mailing them.

Mrs. Wise closed the business meeting with prayer.

A playlet was presented by Mrs. Dale DeLong and Mrs. Harry Hosler, putting emphasis on the Thanksgiving offering to be taken in November.

The program was in charge of Mrs. H. Dale Rough. The theme was "Mission Field USA." The topic of Mrs. Rough's talk was "Sent Forth to Serve Those on the Move." The talk told how a man with an organ and song books in a bus moved from field to field with the migrants, moving as the crop seasons change, to present the people with worship programs.

The program was in charge of Mrs. H. Dale Rough. The theme was "Mission Field USA." The topic of Mrs. Rough's talk was "Sent Forth to Serve Those on the Move." The talk told how a man with an organ and song books in a bus moved from field to field with the migrants, moving as the crop seasons change, to present the people with worship programs.

Mrs. Rough closed the meeting with prayer.

Tiger Prepare For Rosary Game Thursday

Circleville High School gridiron Tigers will make an all-out bid Thursday night to register their first victory of the season when they tangle with Columbus Rosary on the local gridiron. The kick-off is slated for 8 p. m.

The visitors will come to town sporting a record of two wins and two losses. One of their defeats was an 8 to 7 loss to Greenfield.

Last week the Columbus team posted a 28 to 6 win over Franklin Heights.

According to the CHS coaching top physical condition for the top physical condition for the Thursday night contest. However, tackle Rod Shasteen is still on the doubtful list and may see only limited action.

THE STARTING LINEUP in the backfield will probably be about the same as last week, with Don McClaren at left half, Walt Arledge at right half, Mike Hosler at quarterback and Gary Phifer at fullback.

Boys slated to see action on the line will include: Parcher, Garner, Sines, and Johnson at the ends; McClure, Shasteen, Dawson, Perkins and Conrad at the tackles; Barthelmas, Elsea, and McAbee at the guards; and Lemley at center.

Sooner Pooh-Pooh Victory String

NORMAN, Okla. — "Strings don't mean a thing in team athletics," Coach Bud Wilkinson, the string maker, said today as he brushed aside all the remarkable football achievements of his No. 1 rated Sooners.

"Certainly we have a string of 33 victories, but remember that nine of those were made by the 1953 team and there's not one player who is on this year's string," he said. "Only in individual sports does a string mean anything. In team sports, it takes everyone working together."

Matson, Brown Pace Pro Gridders

PHILADELPHIA — Ollie Matson, sometimes referred to as the finest all-around back in the National Football League, is the pro's top ground gainer, and Eddie Brown of the Chicago Bears the leading passer, the season's first statistical report disclosed today.

Matson, a 1952 Olympian from the University of San Francisco who runs like the wind, has gained 306 yards on 45 carries for the surprising Chicago Cardinals.

Brown has thrown 39, completed 26 for 374 yards, four touchdowns and a 9.59 average. He has had only one pass intercepted.

Detroit Tiger Owners Slated To Name Their New Manager

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The new owners of the Detroit Tigers staged a press conference today at which they were expected to confirm month-long reports that coach Jack Tighe is to be the field boss of their 5-million-dollar investment.

That would leave only one managerial vacancy in the majors. The Cleveland Indians still have to name a successor to the resigned Al Lopez.

Tighe, who joined the Tiger family in 1935 as a farm club catcher, was brought up to the parent club as a minor league scout two years ago after managing in the minors. He became first base coach when Bucky Harris succeeded Fred Hutchinson as manager in 1955.

Harris recently resigned when the new bosses demanded a more aggressive manager although Harris had brought the Tiger youngsters along for a fifth place finish. The Tigers won 79 games, their best since winning 95 under Red Rolfe as runndersup to the New York Yankees in the 1950 American League pennant race.

In the only other managerial move to date, the Chicago Cubs recently named Bob Scheffing to succeed Stan Hack; and the Baltimore Orioles extended Paul Richards' contract through 1959. The World Champion New York Yankees also signed Casey Stengel for another two years.

On the negative side, the New York Giants chiled reports that Karl Schladehan, Michigan State track coach, was voted into the Helms Hall of Fame for track and field men in 1955.

Williams Said Already Signed

BOSTON — A report that Ted Williams signed a two-year contract last winter and is all set to play another season with the Boston Red Sox drew only terse comment today from club officials.

"We'll announce it when he signs," a Red Sox spokesman said.

The Boston Record said it learned Williams signed a two-year contract before the 1956 season "from a responsible source who is close to the great man, but has no affiliation with the ball club. The Red Sox did not proclaim the signing of the two-year contract possibly because they wanted two harvests of headline hay instead of one."

The 1958 University of North Carolina football team held nine rivals to a total of eight points.

Gary Phifer Is Named CHS Player-O-Week

Fullback Gary Phifer, steady all around performer on the Circleville High School gridiron machine, was named the outstanding Tiger player in last week's game with Columbus St. Charles.

The CHS coaching staff said that Phifer was selected for the honors by virtue of his workmanlike efforts on both offense and defense during the Friday night encounter.

Time after time the sturdy fullback covered both sides of the CHS forward wall from his linebacker spot to stop enemy runners.

Starting the season at guard in order to bolster coach Tom Bennett's line, the versatile Tiger was transferred to the fullback slot a few days prior to the St. Charles game. Last year he saw action at both halfback posts.

But now, at least in the southern provinces, to which the contest has so far been confined, the mass of the people take an active, nay, a fanatical part in the struggle against the foreigners. They poison the bread of the European community at Hong Kong by wholesale, and with the coolest premeditation.

What Marx refers to is the Taiping Rebellion which started among newly converted Christians who broke out of the South and murdered literally millions of Chinese before it wore itself out by excesses of luxury and the actual madness of its leadership. China has never recovered from the ravages of the Taiping Rebellion.

It so impoverished the country and weakened the government that it led to the partition of China, the revolutions of Sun Yat-sen, the rise of the Tsuchuns, the struggle for power between Russia and Japan, resulting in wars, and finally the Kuomintang and Communist Revolutions and the union of Red China with Soviet Russia.

Which is the bad word—colonialism or Soviet Russia?

Council's Pumpkin Eve Meeting Brief; Pay Raise Given Parking Meter Man

Apparently under the lure of the big celebration that was soon to open, Cincinnati city council last night held its Pumpkin Show Eve meeting to less than one hour.

No recesses were called. No controversial questions were brought up for argument. And there was no effort to close out the sound of show preparations on the streets around city hall.

A communication received by Mayor Bob Hodges from the Ohio Inspection Bureau hinted at big council discussions in the near future, but the lawmakers last night merely moved to "accept and file" the letter.

(See page one story)

Council voted adoption of one resolution and the passage of several new ordinances with little discussion on any of them. Only measure of the group to draw any amount of talk was an ordinance to raise the salary of Nolan Dunkle, the city's parking meter maintenance man.

DUNKLE, WHO has limited police authority, was voted a raise from $200 a month to $225. Working under the safety department, he works a 48-hour week, as required by state statute.

The pay raise was advocated by Councilman George Crites as soon as the ordinance was read. Crites said Dunkle received only about $40 a week in "take-home pay" under his old scale. Under the increase, Crites added, the "take-home pay" will "probably be about $50 a week."

Council President Ben Gordon, while not opposing the increase, commented:

"The only bad feature is, you raise one and you start a whole round of inflation."

Crites agreed that was a risk, but replied:

"Yes, but a man has to live."

Councilman Dudley Carpenter pointed out that Dunkle had only been getting "about one dollar an hour, the minimum wage". And he also felt that the pay hike "wouldn't be out of line."

City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins was not present for the meeting.

SHORTLY AFTER the session opened, Councilman Charles Kirkpatrick told council how an organization of Northend residents had queried him as to the amount of lighting planned for the Cedar Heights area, one of the North Annex sections still being developed.

Gordon called attention to the fact that the city's contract with the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company will soon be up for renewal, and fellow councilmen urged Kirkpatrick to wait until that time to get a definite answer to his questions. He agreed to do so, after being assured that some action will be taken.

Kirkpatrick also revealed he had been contacted by the American Hotel in reference to having a loading - unloading space reserved in front of the hotel. Members of council said there appeared to be no obstacle in the way of having this done.

After next hearing the letter from the Ohio Inspection Bureau, council adopted a resolution to award notes to the Third National Bank, part of the financing routine for street construction and repair. The program was approved in council some time ago.

The next measure was a two-part ordinance asking fund allocations as follows:

1. The sum of $500 "for the maintenance and repair of police cruises and other police equipment."
2. The sum of $2,760 "to be used by the city solicitor in payment of the W. H. Anderson Company for its services rendered in codifying and printing the (city) ordinances."

THE CITY hired the Cincinnati firm to overhaul its mass of overlapping and out-dated ordinances into a new indexed book, tentative copies of which were shown to council at the preceding meeting. The Anderson firm is now correcting errors and making other revisions in the first copy, preparatory to placing the complete codification before council for approval.

Council passed the fund transfer measure.

The lawmakers also okayed a request for $500 for water meter maintenance expenses. City Utilities Manager Ervin Leist explained that costs had been greater than anticipated this year.

In a routine action shortly before adjournment, council accepted a city tax rate of 4.90 mills, as drawn by the budget commission. The rate remains unchanged from that set last year.

Before they ended their session, however, the municipal legislators made it clear they still feel the budget commission should have given the city a greater share of the local government fund in the budget "divvy" this year.

Crites moved that council go through with its plan to file formal protest to the state against the share given Circleville. His motion was passed.

Kids Like Math, Professor Says

DENVER — Who says kids don't like math?

"If they had a choice they'd keep arithmetic and throw out sports," says Dr. Richard Madden, a professor of education at San Diego (Calif.) State College. He is in Denver as special consultant to public schools.

"That old saw about school kids and math is all wrong. But, mathematics is a language. And teachers can't learn to talk it by going to college and studying calculus. They get it by working with kids. 'No, boys and girls like math. The problem is to get teachers to like it, too.'"
